Russian Nihilists Blow Up a Church With Dynamite.

The examination of Cunningham's alleged confederate, Burton, the prisoner remanded—Russia's Motives Impugned—The Prince of Wales Slightly Injured in a Railway Accident—European Echoes.

England.

A HOSTILE MOTIVE.
London, February 4.—The Times says that Russia's advance in Afghanistan can be explained only by some ulterior and unwelcome motive, distinctly hostile both to Afghanistan and England. Any move on the ground of doubt as to the limit of frontier is rendered impossible by Russia's refusal to logically investigate without delay. Heretofore she has been content to wait until the Russian Government has done anything to bring these colonies into closer trade relations with us.

Italy.

CARDINAL JACOBI TO RESIGN.
Rome, February 4.—A report is circulated that Cardinal Jacobi has finally decided to resign his position as Papal Secretary of State, and soon formally retire. The reason for this decision is a difficult, because of continued and growing dissension between him and the committee of cardinals upon the question of the Vatican's political attitude.

Denouncing Dynamite.

The Monitor De Rome, in a leading article today, expresses regret that Parnell and other Nationalist leaders have made any allusion to the dynamite outrages. The writer thinks this looks bad; he also thinks it might be a wise course for the Irish bishops to deny any sympathy with dynamite warfare. The denunciation of the dynamite, the writer says in conclusion, by Parnell and the bishops would create a good impression in England and elsewhere.

Novo Scotia.

A FEROUS TRIP.
Halifax, February 4.—The steamer Polynesian arrived this morning from Liverpool, and experienced an extremely tempestuous passage. The first day at sea was quite moderate, but on Wednesday night the ship was tossed about by a heavy sea, and the passengers were much distressed. The ship was finally calmed down, and the passengers were able to get some rest.

CITY ITEMS.

To-day is another of those booming, busy business days at C. Crawford & Co.'s great store that has so often been seen at their home and nowhere else. The bankrupt stock of the Leubus Bros. and of the New York Syndicate are the grand features of attraction in this popular house. When one sees how D. C. & Co. throw, as it were, away such choice goods in silk, dress goods, cloaks, blouses, millinery, notions, gloves, prints, lace, ribbons, buttons, gingham, underwear, corsets, shoes, brocade, lacy, gents' furnishings, goods, quilts, towels, linens, sheeting, shirtings, flannels, skirts, etc., it is no wonder the crowd and scramble to secure them are tremendous.

Governor Cleveland in New York City to Confer with Party Leaders.

The President-elect's arrival at the Victoria Hotel—A disappointed lot of politicians—Mr. Cleveland tells the object of his visit to Gotham—No offer made to any one except Hayard—The apartments at the hotel.

By Telegram to the Post-Dispatch.

New York, February 5.—President-elect Cleveland spent last night in this city as a guest of the Victoria Hotel. In deference to his well-known disposition to have any public display made about his movements, there was no formal welcome extended to him on his arrival at the Grand Central Hotel. He boarded the Chicago express, due here at 10 o'clock, but it was nearly an hour later when the long train came in. There were many waiting to greet the President-elect, and when it was known that the coming chief magistrate was a passenger, a great throng gathered outside the depot and from the street outside to take a look at him. W. D. Donohue, who had known the President-elect when he was a lawyer's clerk in Buffalo, and who recently had assisted him in the election, was one of the first to greet him. He was a cheerful, hearty, and well-known figure, and his old Buffalo friends, the pair and a crowd of others, gathered about him. He was dressed in a dark suit, and his hair was graying. He was looking well, and his face was bright. He was surrounded by a crowd of people, and he was looking at them all. He was looking at the people who were waiting for him, and he was looking at the people who were looking at him. He was looking at the people who were looking at him, and he was looking at the people who were looking at him.

LISTEN TO THE VIEWS AND REPROBATIONS of prominent Democrats and others. He has in mind the Democratic National Committee to meet him and many of them are now here and are directly connected with politics, but who represent large business interests, who will also come in for consideration. The object of his visit is to hear their views and to hear their reprobations of the Democratic party. He is going to hear their views and to hear their reprobations of the Democratic party. He is going to hear their views and to hear their reprobations of the Democratic party.
